Comoros seasonal storage

What climate zone is Comoros in?

Summary: Most regions (3) in Comoros lie in the Tropical rainforest climate zone(Köppen: Af). The mean average of annual temperatures range from a high of 27.14°C (80.85°F) in Moheli to a low of 26.61°C (79.9°F) in Grande Comore. Comoros's states/regions ranking by average yearly temperature: Climate of Comoros.

How much precipitation does Comoros get per month?

Average precipitation during this time ranges between 50-100 mm per month. Temperature Average annual temperature in Comoros has increased by 0.9°C. The largest increase in temperature is during the rainy season,particularly the months of March to May. Precipitation

Does Comoros have a spring season?

Comoros does not experience a typical spring seasondue to its location near the equator. However,during the months of March to May,which can be analogized to a temperate spring season,the country sees increased rainfall with average temperatures ranging from 25°C (77°F) to 28°C (82.4°F).

How long is the rainy season in Comoros?

The rainy season has experienced increasing irregularity,but overall,it has shortened in duration from 6 months to around 3 months. During 1960-1975,Comoros experienced a decrease in precipitation,followed by a sharp increase in rainfall in 1976,and then followed by increased irregularity between 1977-1989.

When is the best time to visit Comoros?

Precipitation is distributed evenly across all months,with the average monthly rainfall measuring at least 60mm (2.36"). This persistent humidity creates an overall damp environment,with regular morning mists that usually clear up by noon. The ideal time to visit Comoros is during the cooler,drier season,typically from May to November.

What is the wettest season in Comoros?

Winter,from December to February,is the wettest and hottest season in Comoros. Average temperatures hover between 26°C (78.8°F) to 30°C (86°F),and heavy rainfall becomes a common occurrence,reaching monthly totals of over 200mm (7.87").

Climate information for Comoros. Prevailing weather conditions, with data in Celsius and Fahrenheit, millimeters and inches. With tips on the best time to visit and what to pack in the suitcase

The climate of Comoros is characterized by a tropical climate with a rainy season that lasts from mid-November to mid-April and a dry season that extends from June to October. Annual rainfall ranges between 1,000 and 5,000 mm across the three islands due to differences in ...

Comoros seasonal storage

Summary: Most regions (3) in Comoros lie in the Tropical rainforest climate zone (Köppen: Af). The mean average of annual temperatures range from a high of 27.14°C (80.85°F) in Moheli to a low of 26.61°C (79.9°F) in Grande Comore.

In Comoros, the wet season is hot and mostly cloudy; the dry season is warm, windy, and mostly clear; and it is oppressive year round. Over the course of the year, the temperature typically varies from 70°F to 88°F and is rarely below ...

This page presents Comoros"s projected climate. Data is shown as either the projected mean or anomaly (change) and is presented spatially, as a seasonal cycle, time series, or heatplot, which shows seasonal change over long-term time horizons. We offer a range of variables at both national and sub-national aggregations.

In Comoros, the wet season is hot and mostly cloudy; the dry season is warm, windy, and mostly clear; and it is oppressive year round. Over the course of the year, the temperature typically varies from 70°F to 88°F and is rarely below 68°F or above 90°F.

The climate in Comoros is tropical, with temperatures ranging from 25°C to 30°C throughout the year. The country experiences two distinct seasons, the dry season and the wet season. In this article, we will take a closer look at the climate in Comoros, what the weather is like throughout the year, when is the best time to visit, and how this ...

The climate guide for Comoros, represented by Moroni, Grande Comore, (Moroni, Grande Comore) shows long term monthly weather averages processed from data supplied by CRU (University of East Anglia), the Met Office &  the Netherlands Meteorological Institute.

What type of climate does Comoros have? The weather in Comoros is influenced by the Tropical Monsoonal climate. Rain season. Short dry season. There are one or more months with less than 60 mm (2.4") of rain. Monthly average temperatures are greater than 64°F (18°C). Highest annual temperature occurs just before the rainy season.

Summary: Most regions (3) in Comoros lie in the Tropical rainforest climate zone (Köppen: Af). The mean average of annual temperatures range from a high of 27.14°C (80.85°F) in Moheli ...

There is little seasonal variation in temperature, with average temperatures remaining above 18°C (64.4°F) throughout the year. Precipitation is distributed evenly across all months, with the average monthly rainfall measuring at least 60mm (2.36").

Web: https://www.worldtheologicaluniversity.co.za